

SENSATIONAL EXPOSURES MADE BY HOWE PROBERS

Majority Report Filed in the Senate Exposes Lax Methods in Office of Republican State Officials

Committee Makes Recommendations Which Should Be Acted Upon Immediately---Matter to Be Turned Over to Attorney General.

Columbus, May 11.—A full and comprehensive report of the Howe probe committee was submitted to the Senate Saturday, by Senator Fred C. Howe, chairman of the committee, which goes into all the sensational disclosures made in connection with the investigation of the conduct of public affairs by the auditor and treasurer of state.

A minority report was submitted by Senator Patterson, the Republican member, who finds little to criticize in the conduct of these offices by his brother Republican officials. The majority report is signed by Senators Howe and Druke.

The majority report makes seven distinct charges and criticisms. They are:

1. That no books were kept to show where state moneys were deposited.

2. That transactions were covered up by the refusal of the Capitol Trust company, the bank of which Auditor of State Guilbert is president to submit his books to the committee's examinations.

3. That a discrepancy of $33,881 existed between the treasurer's records and the banks having state funds.

4. That favoritism was shown by the state board of deposits in letting money out to favored banks at extremely low rates of interest, thus beating the state out of large sums annually.

5. That state funds were used to extend the political power of the treasurer of state.

6. That corporations were assessed for taxation by the state board of appraisers and assessors at so low a figure, as to cost the state annually about $900,000.

7. The report recommends changes in the conduct of the office and directs that the data gathered by the committee be turned over to the attorney general, that he may bring action against banks and officials and compel the payment of interest money due the state.

The report says the committee found:

1. That the office of treasurer has been administered with the greatest disregard of the public welfare. The office contained no books, ledgers or records showing the transactions of the treasurer with the 148 state depositories. There was no book record of the amount of money deposited or where deposited. The treasurer had to go to the banks themselves in February last to obtain this information and this, when received, did not correspond with his own records. It is absurd to suppose that this was due to ignorance for both the treasurer and his deputy are men of wide experience. It is inconceivable that ignorance of modern business methods should explain the total absence of the records to show how the moneys of the state were handled.

2. The committee could not ascertain the real facts because the auditor of state and the Capitol Trust company, of which he is president, refused to produce the cashier's checks, which evidenced his transactions with the treasury department. These cashier's checks were issued to the treasurer in settlement of collections amounting to $2,000,000 under the Cole law. As to whether the cashier's checks were in reality cashed, or were held by the treasurer as cash the committee could only conjecture.

3. As indicating the utter disregard of business methods it appears from the examination of the accounting employed, made by the committee that a discrepancy of $33,881.48 existed between the correspondence of the bank and the cash book entries. It was impossible to balance a single item in the twelve quarters covered by the board deposit law.

The committee found that the treasurer neglected to deposit the quarterly collections of February, 1908, for two months. On this sum the state lost interest on over $30,000.

4. The state board of deposit, consisting of the treasurer, auditor and attorney general, made no effort to secure competitive interest from the banks, receiving only 1 1/2 per cent. interest from the banks that were paying 3 to 4 per cent. to other depositors. The board was equally negligent in leaving large sums of money in the treasury for three years on which interest on over $60,000 was lost.

An explanation of the low rate of interest may be found in the fact that the treasurer, auditor and Mr. Green were all heavily interested as stockholders in banks which held upwards of a million dollars of the state's money. There is no doubt that had the board of deposit performed their trust as the law requires and as business prudence demands, the state would have realized at least $250,000 interest during the last three years.

5. Immense sums have been lost through the action of the auditor in depositing money coming into his hands in banks in which he was interested and permitting it to lie there for considerable periods of time before turning it into the treasury.

In addition to this loss, the auditor testified that he had held checks of corporations for a considerable period of time before cashing them, at the request of the corporations.

Even at the low rate of interest paid, the total loss to the state from the failure to deposit money immediately, amounted to the sum of $98,001.

6. The system employed of depositing money by favor rather than by competition enables the treasurer to exercise a tremendous financial and political power. The control of $7,000,000 places 150 banks, with their 2000 directors, under obligations to the treasurer, and these bankers are very influential in local politics. Favored banks may retain their favor by extending favors to the treasurer in return. To this must be added the political power wielded by the auditor through power lodged in his hands of assessing franchises and public service corporations, whose political influences ramify into every township in the state.

7. Corporations assessed under the Nichols law were assessed at but a fraction of their real value. The committee estimated that the failure of the state board of appraisers, to properly appraise the corporations falling under their control involved the loss to the state of not far from $900,000 a year.

The committee recommends the following:

(a) The immediate installation of a proper system of accounting and bookkeeping in the treasurer's office.

(b) The passage of an amendment to the board of deposit law, requiring competitive bidding for the funds of the state and immediate action by the present board to secure competitive bidding under the present law.

(c) The deposit of the immense sums lying idle in the treasury vaults.

(d) The organization of a system of competitive purchase of supplies for the statehouse.

(e) The introduction of a uniform system of vouchers, pay rolls and accounts for all institutions of the state.

(f) The appointment of a board to supersede the board of appraisers whose sole duty would be the valuation of public service corporations for taxation.

(g) That the data gathered by the committee be turned over to the attorney general to investigate the same, and if grounds exist thereafter the immediate institution of suits to collect interest from the auditor, treasurer and the banks which have been holding moneys without paying interest during all the years covered by the state deposit law.

ON HOME STRETCH

ALL CONVENTION DELEGATES WILL HAVE BEEN ELECTED BY SATURDAY NIGHT.

Taft Will Not Have Majority and Roosevelt Will Be Urged to Accept Third Term.

Washington, May 11.—Candidates for prizes at the Chicago Republican convention today entered the home stretch. By Saturday night every delegate will have been chosen. Under the convention call the time for electing delegates was limited to thirty days before the opening of the convention. This week 128 delegates will be chosen. They are regarded as being independent.

tary Taft and the "allies." It is said that while a majority of the delegates to the convention will lean Taftward, the secretary of war on Saturday night will not have a majority instructed for him and unopposed. Should this prove correct, a tremendous pressure will be brought to bear on uninstructed delegates. The "allies" are said now to be planning to push forward Roosevelt for a third term.

TROOPS

Will Probably Not be Withdrawn Until After Tobacco Plants Have Been Transplanted.

Columbus, May 11.—Colonel Worthington Kautzman, assistant adjutant general, returned Monday from the tobacco district of Brown, Adams and Clermont counties. He said: "I think it will not be safe to withdraw the troops until after the tobacco plants have been transplanted from the beds to the fields, and this work will start at once."

PEOPLE

Swarmed by Thousands Over Farm

DAY OF MERRY MAKING

Men, Women and Children Eager to View Remains

Relic Hunters in Abundance and People Turned Graveyard Into Picnic Grounds.

Laporte, Ind., May 11.—The Laporte city council tonight will offer a $5,000 reward for the capture of Mrs. Belle Guinness or any of her accomplices. The council will also try to bring the city and county officials together. They have been working at cross purposes owing to political troubles. Opinion is divided as to whether Mrs. Guinness actually burned to death or has escaped.

Laporte, Ind., May 11.—The grim confines of the Guinness farm, still laden with the gruesome evidence of one of the greatest murder mysteries of modern times, yesterday rang with the laughter of little children, the quips and jests of country swains and sweethearts, the jargon of postcard sellers and "street men" and the loud disparagements of souvenir hunters. It is estimated that at least 15,000 people poured into Laporte on special excursion trains, interurban cars, autos and all sorts of smaller vehicles, to attend an organized feast of the morbid and curious believed to be without parallel in the United States.

Had an admission fee of 50 cents a head been charged enough money might easily have been raised to defray the expense of employing an additional corps of detectives to work on the case. To have done so would not materially have increased the commercial aspect of the place of butchery.

Sheriff Smutzer and Deputies Leroy Marr and Wm. Ansliss stood guard all day to prevent the debris in the cellar of the house from being carried off by the bagful. Digging for more bodies was out of the question. The sight-seers would have swamped all attempts to conduct excavations. As it was, women clawed at the little red carriage house, which has become the repository of the dismembered bodies. They stuck their fingers in the cracks and wrenched the boards in an attempt to pry them apart far enough to see inside and feed their curiosity.

Men boosted each other to the window in the end of the structure and gazed at the bodies until others behind them pushed them from their places to make room for other gazers. Several times during the day the doors were opened and the spectators filed "in line" past the door through which could be seen the bodies and from which was exuded a terrible stench.

Psychologists would have been at a loss to designate the spectators as belonging to any given rank of society. There were women in smartly-tailored gowns who came all the way from Chicago with their husbands in costly automobiles, old men and women who hobbled in from their homes on crutches and hired men galore from all the farms in Northern Indiana, apparently. Members of churches mingled with the demi-monde in struggling for views of the places from which the bodies were taken last week, and babes of a few months sat neglected in their little carriages while

SOCIALIST CONVENTION

HAVING STRENTUOUS TIMES AT TODAY'S SESSION IN CITY OF CHICAGO.

Conservatives are in Control and Eugene V. Deb Will Probably Head the Ticket.

Chicago, May 11.—Victor Berger, of Milwaukee, in an impassioned speech on the floor of the Socialist convention, demanding that the organization declare in favor of trades unions, today warned the convention that he and his friends will bolt if if unionism is not favored. The convention was in an uproar as the result of a fight between friends of the American Federation of Labor and Industrial Workers of the World. Conservatism won its first victory in the convention today. Incidentally the proposition to back the national socialist movement as a tail to the kite of the Western Federation of Miners, was rebuked, following a stormy session. The conservatives won their fight on the proposition to send a congratulatory message to the Western Federation of Miners, it being referred to the committee on resolutions 91 pages to 93 pages. This means the nomination of Debs and the adoption of a conservative platform.

RATE WAR

Lima, O., May 11.—The Lake Erie & Western, a steam road, started a rate war against the Western Ohio and other competing traction lines today. It cut passenger tariffs between Fostoria and Celina to one cent a mile, with two passengers permitted on a single ticket at round trip rates. It is understood the traction lines will meet the cut.

CORNER

Stone Laying of Bureau of American Republics

OCCURRED AT 3 O'CLOCK

Messages of Congratula- tions from All But Pres. Castro

President, Secretary Root, Andrew Carnegie and Ambassador Nabuco Deliver Addresses.

Washington, May 11.—The greater portion of the western hemisphere was officially represented today at the laying of the corner stone of the new monument to Secretary Root's Pan-American idea, the future home of the International Bureau of American Republics. President Roosevelt and Secretary Root were the spokesmen for the interest of the United States in the enterprise. Ambassador Joaquim Nabuco, of Brazil, dean of the Latin American diplomatic corps, spoke for the other countries, and Andrew Carnegie, benefactor of the institution to the extent of $750,000, delivered an address. The exercises began at 3 p. m. A score of cable messages from president of South and Central American countries, expressing congratulations, were read. President Castro of Venezuela, did not send a message.

Pointing to the realization of hope for arbitration of all future difficulties in the Americas marked by the erection of the new building for the Bureau of American Republics, as a further chapter in the Gospel of Peace, Andrew Carnegie followed the address of President Roosevelt with a sermon on "Peace on Earth and Good Will Toward Man."

"Today," said Mr. Carnegie, "my thoughts revert to the first Pan-American conference, of which I was a member, called by my friend, Mr. Blaine, then secretary of state, worthy pioneer, in the great work in which we are now engaged, which is, I believe, to culminate in the banishment of war from the American continents and the dedication of the western hemisphere to internal peace."

"It remains for this hemisphere to maintain its lead in the adoption of arbitration as the only Christian means of settling international disputes. We hope that all of the republics in the South American continent will soon follow the example of Argentina and Chile and of the five Central American republics with their one supreme tribunal, recently constituted at a meeting of their representatives in Washington."

"There is no work going forward in the world today," Mr. Carnegie concluded, "which good men everywhere should regard with deeper interest and warmer approval than that in which the American republics are now engaged. Hold fast to your ideal—the American continents dedicated to internal peace."

"There has never been a parallel for the sight which this ceremony of laying of the corner stone of this building presents—that of twenty-one nations, of different languages, building together a house for their common deliberations."

With these words as an introduction to an address that mixed prophecy with tribute to President Roosevelt, Secretary of State Root, and Andrew Carnegie, Ambassador Joaquim Nabuco, of Brazil, today voiced the attitude of the South American republics in acceptance of the international headquarters here, marked by the erection of the new building for the Bureau of American Republics.

Declaring that the two Americas form a hemisphere of peace, the ambassador eloquently pictured the spontaneous and irresistible force of national conscience toward a common destiny for all Americans.

"By the loftiness of his ideals, his

TROLLEY TUNNEL EAST OF NEWARK

The scenery along the traction line between Newark and Zanesville is the most picturesque in Ohio. The road follows the course of the Licking river and the view in the vicinity of Black Hand compares very favorably with the more celebrated scenery of Colorado. The picture shows the tunnel at Black Hand, one of the few electric railway tunnels in Ohio and the only one in Licking county.

The Scrap Book

Interpreting a Prescription.
A lady one day in July visited her physician.
"Madam," said the physician, "you are only a little run down. You need frequent baths and plenty of fresh air, and I advise you to dress in the coolest, most comfortable clothes—nothing stiff or formal."
When she got home her husband asked what the physician had said.
"He said I must go to the sea, do plenty of automobiling and get some new summer gowns."

THE PENALTY.
Pleasure has bounds. Too greedily pursued, enjoyment ceases and disgust ensues. Thus, at first glance, some recent painting viewed.
The verdant landscape smiles in all its brightest hues.
But stand and gaze awhile, and by degrees the eye grows tired, the colors cease to please;
Its beauties vanish, and its faults arise: You think of other times and criticize.
—Secundus.

Where She Was Needed.
At a Sunday school convention at Louisville, Ky., in answer to the roll call of states reports were verbally given by the various state chairmen. When the Lone Star State was called, a brawny specimen of southern manhood stepped out into the aisle and with strident voice exclaimed: "We represent the great state of Texas. The first white woman born in Texas is still living. She now has a population of over 3,000,000."
There was a pause for a moment, and then a voice from the gallery rang out clear and distinct:
"Send that woman to Wyoming. We need her."—Everybody's.

He Should Learn to Sew.
"My husband annoys me very much," said the clubwoman. "He is so slipshod. His buttons are forever coming off."
"Perhaps," said an old fashioned woman gently, "they are not sewed on properly in the first place."
"That's just it. My husband is one of the most careless sewers I ever saw."

The Burglar's Meal.
Charles Lamb was awakened early one morning by a noise in his kitchen and on going downstairs found a burglar doing his spoons up in a bundle.
"Why d-d-o you s-s-st-teal?" he asked.
"Because I'm starving," returned the housebreaker sullenly.
"Fup-pup-poor fuf-fuf-fellow!" said the essayist. "H-her-e's a l-l-leg of L-L-Lamb for you!"
And with a dexterous movement of his right leg, he ejected the marauder into the street and, locking the door securely, went back to bed.

Riding a Chautauqua.
The citizens of a thriving town of about 6,000 people arranged for a Chautauqua assembly. They held the meetings in a big tent about a mile from the town, and the attendance was large from the first day. An enterprising circus man landed in the town on the second day of the Chautauqua with a steam merry-go-round, which he located about halfway between the town and the Chautauqua grounds.
Along in the afternoon a young man from the country districts was accused by a citizen of the town.
"Well, Ezzy, I suppose you are in the Chautauqua?"
"I shore am. Jist come from tea now."
"How'd you like it?"
"Fine ez a fiddle! I rode on the durn thing nine times!"—Lippincott's.

The Thoughtful Employer.
"Are you aware, sir," said the faithful bookkeeper, "that today is the fortieth anniversary of my service with you?"
The employer took a square box neatly wrapped in white paper from his desk.
"I know it, Mr. Quille," he said, "and I have prepared a little surprise for you. Pray accept this alarm clock, with my best wishes for your continued punctuality."

He Couldn't Oblige.
Curate's Wife (liven to nerves)—Hoppitt, would you mind seeing me as far as my house? The lane is so dark.
Cherry Clodhopper—Well, I'd rather not, mum. I promised my young woman I'd chuck that all up.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Took No Chances.
A Scotch farmer went to town to have a tooth extracted.
"I would advise you to have it out by the painless system. It is only a shilling extra," said the dentist.
He showed the apparatus for administering gas, remarking that it would cause him to fall asleep, and before he awoke the tooth would be out.
After reluctantly consenting, the customer proceeded to open his purse.
"Oh, never mind paying now!"
"Hoos! I wasna thinkin' o' that, but if I'm gaen the sleep I thocht I wa like to count na siller first."

Toasting a Deaf Miser.
A deaf man—let us call him Brown—was disposed to stinginess and to getting every dollar he could out of everybody and everything. He never married, but he was very fond of society. No one day he felt compelled to give a banquet to the many ladies and gentlemen whose guest he had been.
They were amazed that his purse strings had been unloosed so far, and they thought he deserved encouragement, so it was arranged that he should be toasted. One of the most interesting young men of the company was selected, for it took nerve to propose a toast to so unpopular a man. But the young man rose, and Brown, who had been notified of what was to occur, fixed his face in the customary manner of a man about to be toasted. And this is what was heard by every one except Brown, who never heard anything that was not roared into his ear:

"Here's to you, Miser Brown. You are no better than a tramp, and it is suspected that you get most of your money dishonestly. We trust that you may get your just deserts yet and land in the penitentiary."

Visible evidences of applause made Brown smile with gratification. He got upon his feet, raised his glass to his lips and said, "The same to you, sir."

Did I—See the Point?
A young woman of the official set in Washington at a public function found herself bored by the attentions of a fresh young man, the son of a senator.
Soon after his introduction he proceeded to regale her with a story of some adventure in which he had figured as hero.
"Did you really do that?" she asked, not knowing what else to say.
"I done it!" was the proud response, and he began forthwith another lengthy narrative, more startling even than the first. The young woman again politely expressed her surprise.
"Yes," said the hero, "that's what I done!"
A third story followed, with another "I done it!" whereupon the girl remarked:
"Do you know, you remind me so strongly of Banquo's ghost in the play?"
"Why?"
"Don't you remember that Macbeth said to the ghost, 'Thou canst not say I did it!'?"—Lippincott's.

Men Don't Change.
Dad (severely)—And look here, Ethel, you mustn't encourage that young man to stay so late every night. It's disgraceful. What does your mother say about it?
Ethel—She says men haven't altered a bit, dad.
A Lost Apology.
"What a beautiful woman Mrs. Raymond is!" he exclaimed as he entered the sitting room. "I have just had such a pleasant talk with her in the bookstore."
His wife looked up from her sewing.
"John," she exclaimed, "where is your collar?"
He put his hand to his throat. "I must have left it at the barber shop. Yes, that's it. I went to the barber shop, then to the bookstore. Why," he ended lamely, "Mrs. Raymond would think it very careless of me to appear in public without my collar, wouldn't she?"
"Rather," said his wife. "Perhaps I'd better call her up and tell her just how it happened."
He went to the telephone.
"Hello, central; hello! Hello! Is this Mrs. Raymond? Yes? Well, really, it was very stupid of me, Mrs. Raymond; but you know, I had been thinking of something very important, and I quite forgot to put on my collar. I—oh—ah—goodbye!"
He suddenly hung up the receiver and gave utterance to a mild exclamation.
"John!" exclaimed his wife.
"She says she hasn't been out of the house today," he groaned.—Harper's Magazine.

A Hard Task.
With a scowling brow the vaudeville agent awaited the next applicant. A long, lanky individual came to his desk and in funeral tones said, "Good day, sir."
"Well, what do you want?"
"I need a job just now about as much as anything else," answered the lean person.
"Ever had any experience?"
"Oh, indeed, I have been with"— "Chop it short. I know you've been with all the big stars from Hamlet to omelet. That doesn't cut any freeze with me. What's your line?"
"I—I—I'm a—a comedian."
"Well, then, make me laugh."—Lippincott's.

Thrifty Tenement Dwellers.
Congressman Jacob Ruppert of New York represents one of the most congested districts in the metropolis.
Thinking the people who live in tenements might want to plant seeds in boxes on the window sills and fire escapes, he sent an assortment of his quota of garden seeds to the inhabitants of a model tenement just built by a friend of his.
Later he received a letter reading:
"Mr. Dear Ruppert—Please send no more seeds to the people who live in my model tenements.
I went there today, and I find they are all raising radishes, cucumbers and tomatoes in the bathtubs."

Fun With the Conductor.
He boarded the train at St. Paul, bound for Seattle. As the conductor passed through the car he asked how far it was from St. Paul to Seattle.
"Sixteen hundred and twenty miles," the official answered. The next time the conductor came along the man again asked him how far it was from Seattle to St. Paul. "See here, my man," said the conductor pompously, "it's 1,620 miles from St. Paul to Seattle, and it's 1,620 miles from Seattle to St. Paul."
"Maybe so," said the little man modestly. "I didn't know. You see, it's only seven days from Christmas to New Year's, but it's a long time from New Year's to Christmas."—Ladies' Home Journal.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT HAS UTMOST CONFIDENCE IN RETURN OF GOOD TIMES

Washington, May 11.—In a speech to a number of the members of the National Prosperity Association of St. Louis, who called at the White House today, the President expressed the utmost confidence in the return of good times. The President said:

"As you have said, depression and stagnation, from which our country is now beginning to recover, were not caused by reform legislation, but by revelation of shocking conditions in certain of our corporations, and by certain striking, although, I believe, exceptional, instances of business and civic dishonesty. Of course, all good men must agree with you and your men must agree with you in your condemnation of unwise agitation, a pathetic acceptance of abuses in our governmental and business administrations is no more dangerous than demagogic appeals of professional agitators to class hatreds. Our national conscience, I firmly believe, has been awakened. We will not and can not go back to conditions which tolerated wrong doing. Such further regulatory legislation as is required is merely building up on broad foundations that have been laid. It contains no menace to business, and more than that legislation which has already been enacted."

AMUSEMENTS

METROPOLITAN CARNIVAL CO.

The carnival company which is holding forth at the old cemetery grounds on West Main, Sixth and Church streets, threw open its attractions, or a part of them, to the public Saturday evening. Quite a nice crowd visited the grounds and the various shows of the midway, merry-go-round, Ferris wheel, baby and cane racks, etc., were liberally patronized. The carnival is owned by Frederick Ehring and the press representative is George McClaren. The attraction will be here all week.

IDLEWILDE PARK THEATER.

Everything is in readiness for the opening of the Idlewilde Park theater on Sunday, May 24, when the Partello stock company will begin its first summer engagement. The company carries a carload of scenery, several new and novel electrical effects and a competent cast of players, headed by Newark's dainty favorite, Miss Alice Kennedy, who made a pronounced hit during the company's first visit to the Auditorium in March.

ORPHIUM THEATER.

If you want to see some high class acts and if you want to get more than what the money you pay into the box office entitles you to, go to the Orphium some evening this week and see the host of novelties that will be presented. The one main feature in the novelty line is Cero. It is unusual and startling, presented by Professor Boelke, who creates a handsome, living, breathing woman out of a plaster bust, a yellow wig and four plain white sticks, and one can plainly see the creation at all times, which deepens the mystery beyond explanation. Not content with this as a drawing card, Messrs. Sun & Murray have sent us other features, such as Lizzie Wilson, John A. Hawkins and West and Benton.

BIJOU THEATER

Some Facts Interesting to Patrons of Houses of Amusement.

There are moving pictures and moving pictures, pictures that move and pictures that wiggle; pictures that are clean cut and natural as life, and pictures that make one sea sick for a week. But there is but one real picture show in Newark: The Bijou. We are giving the public their money's worth, new, up-to-date subjects at each visit. Never mind about the other fellows' pictures, the ones shown at the Bijou are always satisfactory. They are shown by the latest and most perfect machine. No tired eyes or headaches. And don't fail to hear the illustrated song so well rendered by Miss Dawn Hart.

Gas Explosion.

Mrs. P. L. Webber, widow of the late "Jack" Webber, residing on North Sixth street, had a narrow escape from serious injury and perhaps death, Monday. She was engaged in doing her morning work in the kitchen and had a fire in a hot plate which occupied a position on the range. In some way or other she accidentally turned the key on the range and the kitchen soon filled with gas which caught fire from the hot plate and exploded. The hot plate and top of the range was thrown cross the room and the paper on the wall torn off and furniture badly damaged. Fortunately Mrs. Webber was in another part of the house at the time of the explosion.

NOT A MILITARY HERO WORSHIPER.

[Original.] When the Spanish-American war came on Milton Forester was a lieutenant in the national guard. He received a captaincy in the volunteers and marched away with his regiment amid the plaudits of the throngs who lined the streets. There was one face at an upper window which absorbed all the young soldier's attention, the face of his fiancee, Mary Mills. The look of pride in him and love for him that beamed in her eyes might have exhilarated another, but Forester was a peculiarly sensitive man—a man to dread a possible failure. He knew there were certain men whose constitutional makeups unfitted them to be soldiers, and no man can tell whether he is one of these till he comes to face shot and shell. He dreaded lest he might prove unworthy. Should he falter under the terrible strain of battle he would never see Mary again.

Forester thought too much of this. It is well for one to realize obligations he has taken upon himself, but he should not permit himself to brood over the matter. Forester worried all the way to Florida, from Florida to Cuba and during the campaign until the final fighting, which was the first time he was under fire.

It was during this contest about Santiago that his regiment was ordered forward in the face of a terrible fire. One's first fight is the most trying of all. It is then that the soldier for the first time hears the ugly stinging sound of bullets, the rattle of machine guns and the screech of shells, to all of which there is the background of incessant roar of cannon. Forester looked a little pale, but pressed resolutely on.

All of a sudden he became conscious of a dizzy, nauseating sensation, his foot struck something—or he thought it did—and he pitched forward. The regiment pushed on. Another line of battle came up and was pressing forward when Forester was awakened, as it were, by the sound of a voice. Nathan Burge, an old and tried friend, had seen him, recognized him and stopped to succor him.

"Nate," said Forester, "I've fallen out of the ranks. I hadn't the physical ability to go on. Write to Mary Mills and tell her that I'll never see her again. She has loved a coward."

"Hi, you there! Move on!" cried an officer who was marching in rear to drive on stragglers. Without a word Burge hurried forward, leaving his friend to his own regrets.

When the fight was over Burge sought Forester, but not finding him, supposed that he had hidden his shame by desertion. He waited for a time, thinking that the coward might turn up, but he did not. Burge's regiment was ordered to the coast at the close of the war and was one of the first to embark for home. When he reached Montauk Point the first person he met was Mary Mills. She had come as a nurse. She inquired eagerly for her lover.

Burge prevaricated. He could not bear to deliver the message with which he had been charged. But Mary, with a woman's quick eye where love is concerned, saw that he was concealing something and assumed that her fiance had been killed. Burge would much rather have broken such news to her than that he had turned out a coward. At last he told her the truth. Mary Mills went home bowed down with grief.

The next morning she heard one of her sisters reading from newspaper dispatches from Santiago. She was about to leave the room, dreading lest she should hear that her lover had been ordered before a court martial to be tried for cowardice, when his name was mentioned, but in a different way from what she had expected:

Milton Forester, wounded in the stomach. Operated upon and expected to recover. Promoted to be captain, vice John Kellogg, killed.

Forester after being left by Burge tried to rise. His object was to push forward with a view to getting himself killed. But he found himself too weak to rise. At that moment a surgeon with an ambulance corps came hurrying on, making hasty examinations of the wounded lying on the field. Coming to Forester, he saw blood on his clothing, tore open his coat and said: "A bad wound."

"Is it wounded?" "Yes, in the stomach."

"Thank God!"

The surgeon looked at him with a puzzled expression, but there was no time for words, and after ordering a rescue party to take him to a hospital pushed on.

When the boys of '61 were shot in the stomach there was nothing left for them but to pass the dark portal. Not so in the Cuban war. By that time such progress had been made in surgery that Forester's stomach was laid bare, the wound sewed up, the stomach put back in place, and in time the patient was as well as ever. As soon as it was safe he was put on a transport and sent north. When as a convalescent he walked slowly down the gangway to the dock his friend Burge and his fiancee, Mary Mills, were there to meet him.

"What did you mean," said the former, "by putting up a job on me like that?" "Well, I'll tell you, Nate. I once asked my father, who commanded a battery in the civil war, how he felt on going into a fight. He said it made him sick in the stomach. I felt sick, and I didn't know I'd been struck."

Mrs. Mary Mills Forester, now a matron of thirty-two, says she believes there is a good deal of humbug about "the fearless heroes of war."

Why Not Bread?

"If wheat is the perfect food," you ask, "why not eat more bread?"

But white flour isn't the whole wheat, you know. The outer part and the germ are omitted. The laxative elements, the oil, and much of the proteid, are missing.

But the vital fact is that the starch in bread is insufficiently cooked.

Wheat is largely starch. And starch, to be digestible, must be made soluble. The particles must be separated, so the digestive juices can get to them. That requires long cooking and a terrific heat.

The inside of a loaf never gets half enough heat to break up those granules of starch.

That is why bread—save when well toasted—is never advised for dyspeptics. And that is why much of the bread that you eat never digests and is wasted.

And that is the reason for Mapl-Flake.

In that, the whole wheat is steam-cooked for six hours. Then flaked so thin that the heat can reach every atom. Then toasted, for 30 minutes, at 400 degrees.

The result is a food that's all food—all nourishment—because it all digests.

Mapl-Flake is the world's best food, because it puts the whole wheat into digestible form. No other process does that. It is also the most delicious food, because we cook the wheat with pure Maple Syrup.

The price is 15 cents, because of our process, which requires 96 hours. Other flaked foods are made in one-fourth the time. But remember that the cream cost is the same on poor food as on good food. And, remember, too, that food should be measured by food value.

WHEAT PROSPECTS BECOMING BETTER

Wheat prospects have advanced during the past month, the present prospect being estimated at 92 per cent, compared with an average, a gain of 7 per cent since the issuance of the April report. Last year at this time the prospect was estimated at 74 per cent. From present indications the average yield will far exceed that of last year, but owing to the short acresage seeded the total production will hardly equal the last harvest.

SOLDIERS' REUNION

Plans for holding a big reunion of old soldiers of Franklin, Fairfield, Perry and Licking and other counties at Buckeye Lake on July 22, are being formulated, and promises to be a big success. The affair is not to be a G. A. R. reunion, but a reunion of all old soldiers.
Licking county has over 700 Union soldiers. Not one-third are G. A. R. members, and the other counties named have about the same conditions.
There are many families with wows and orphans of comrades that do not belong to any society, and it was determined at the Buckeye Lake reunion last year to give a Union Soldiers' reunion of all soldiers and their families, July 22, 1908, of the counties adjoining Licking. Captain C. P. King of Newark, was elected president and
D. W. Wood of Newark, secretary.

A DANGER SIGNAL.

The Rapid Breaking Down of Municipal Lighting Plants All Over the Country is a Warning Against Further Ventures in That Direction.
The census report based upon statistics gathered in 1902 showed that of 828 municipal electric light plants only thirteen had been leased, sold or abandoned. During the last fourteen months at least thirty such plants have reverted to private operation, more than twice as many as in all the years preceding 1908. Put in another way, this means that in 1902 there was only one admitted failure out of every sixty-four attempts at municipal operation, while today the ratio has risen until it is one out of every twelve.
The reason of this is not far to seek.
In 1902 the great majority of municipal plants were only a few years old.
Their original installation had not yet worn out, and attention had not generally been called to the misleading bookkeeping which made possible seemingly low rates by ignoring such necessary items as interest, depreciation and renewals, legal service and the services rendered by other city departments at the cost of the taxpayers. Now, however, many of these plants find that their equipment is worn out or so out of date as to be uneconomical and that adequate provision has not been made for paying off the original bonded indebtedness or providing for a renewal of the equipment.
The lack of intelligent care on the part of politically appointed superintendents has frequently been responsible for the breakdown of plants before the expected time, while the rapid development of the industry has made the old methods relatively so expensive that many cities have found it more economical to pocket their loss long before the equipment had worn out, finding it cheaper to make contracts with companies whose plants are more modern.

Fathers and mothers bought postal cards bearing pictures at which Dore might have stood agast. And over all flowed revelry and merriment suited to a country air or a summer-amusement park. It was a perfect lay, and under fruit trees savoring varicolored petals of bloom, bevy of country maiden sat and ate their lunches.

A ball game was in progress at the local ball park, but the fearsome attractions of the Guinness place proved overmastering rivalry in point of attendance. The chance to take home a brick from the Guinness place was considered preferable to such an everyday opportunity as that of a mere ball game. It was considered big enough to draw people all the way from Chicago, Indianapolis, Goshen, South Bend, Michigan City, Elkhart, New Castle, Mishawka, and a hundred villages and hamlets.

Back and forth through the crowd walked "Uncle Ben," a simple old negro from the country, armed with a forked willow "divining rod," with which he assumed to detect hidden graves of murder victims. Thirty-seven in all he announced solemnly to the superstitious.

"Is there a dance down to the pavilion tonight?" called a country boy with a bunch of lilacs in the buttonhole of his Sunday coat.

"You bet," responded a Hoosier girl,
with her mouth full of chewing gum.
"I'll be there with bells on," responded the lad gleefully, just as a postal-card started to drown him out with seniorian shouts of "Here's where you get your picture postal cards of the Guinness family: 10 cents each or three for a quarter; better take a half a dollar's worth and make a good selection."

"Postals of Heleglein's body all gone," announced the vender. "Sold 'em all, but got some good ones left of the other bodies."

"This is just the way this body laid," announced another man with a bundle of horrible pictures. "You see the head here, the trunk there and the limbs as Mrs. Guinness sewed them up in the gunny sacking." "Ice crea- 5 cents; ice cream, 5 cents," piped a man with a white wagon at the edge of the road just as a surry, converted into a candy wagon and manned by white-coated men pulling white cream, ashed by, shedding dust over the cornucopias of cold sweets for dispensation to waiting customers.

"Awful, ain' it?" observed Sheriff Smutzer, mopping his brow.

"There don't seem to be any horror in it these people. I never saw folks having a better time."

"More people here than there was at the fair, ain't there Sheriff?" observed an urchin, on friendly terms with the arm of the law.

"It's all the funeral that Mrs. Gun-ness' victims air goin' ter git," observed a sombre old lady in rusty black, who had bronzed her sandwiches and some of her crabapple jelly with her. "I've watched funerals off and on for 55 years, an' this is the biggest an' liveliest one I've seen yet."

"Git away from that barn; hain't you got your eyes full?" shouted a buxom farmer's wife to her 10-year-old son, who was looking through the window at a sight that he may dream of for nights to come.

"There'll be a lot of folks in Northern Indiana afraid to go to bed in the dark tonight," amended a man who seemed 'o know what he was talking about.

The congestion at the hotels and restaurants was remarkable. Livery rigs were at a premium, and many tramped all the way through the dust over the macadam road to reach the farm and then tramped back again.
The fine roads in this district were a boon to the automobilists. The courthouse square was rimmed black with people eating their lunches in the open, and the interurbans were loaded like the old-time grip cars of Chicago during an evening rush. Several pockets were reported picked.

The only accident worthy of note occurred when Mrs. Benjamin Zanel of Laporte, had her arm broken by the overturning of a carriage.

When the confusion of the day had given place to comparative quiet at night, Sheriff Smutzer recalled that two brothers from Chicago, named Lindberg, had approached him on the grounds and said that they were hunting for traces of a missing brother, who left Chicago three years ago to work for Mrs. Guinness. The crowd was so great that the brothers said they would see the Sheriff later about the matter, and then were merged in the crowd without giving their full names and addresses.

A Mistaken Idea

Some people build or buy a home and give a mortgage payable in a term of years, thinking it will be easy to pay the mortgage when due. They seldom pay more than the interest, and the principal remains unpaid. On our weekly or monthly payment plan (just like rent) the principal is constantly being reduced. Let us explain our method of loaning.

TENNIS CABINET

MEETS REGULARLY ON COURT IN REAR OF THE WHITE HOUSE BUILDING.

President One of the Most Enthusiastic Players—Other Members Who Enjoy the Sport.

Washington, May 11.—With the return of warm weather the meetings of the Tennis Cabinet have been resumed on the court in the rear of the White House office building, and one new member has been initiated.

The Tennis Cabinet is that favored coterie of office holders and diplomats that the President invites to test rackets with him about three afternoons a week, and, although there are no minutes kept of the proceedings, there are those who assert that much of the real business of the government is shaped upon the chalk-drawn rectangle.

However important may be the sessions of the Tennis Cabinet from an official point of view, there is no doubt that the President and his friends get a whole lot of fun out of their games. Exercise, just as strenuous as they can make it, is apparently the grand aim of all the players, and to watch a game is better than go to a circus. Just as soon as the snow was well off the court the ground was put in condition and even upon days when the surface is dotted with mud holes, the game goes on.

William Phillips, who has charge of one of the bureaus of the State Department, is the latest addition to the list of players and is one of the best. He is an athletic young fellow, not very many years out of college, and plays a fast and steady game that makes the work of some of the others look clumsy and amateurish.

The other members of this unofficial cabinet in the order of their prominence in the White House game are Mr. Jusserand, the French Ambassador; Gifford Pinchot, the chief forester; Secretary Garfield of the Interior Department; Assistant Attorney General Cooley; Assistant Secretary Murray of the Department of Justice; Postmaster General Mayo; Assistant Secretary of State Bacon; and Herbert Knox Smith, Commissioner of Corporations. Smith, Meyer and Bacon seldom play, but when they do they put up a game worth while. The beset of the whole crowd is welded by Mr. Jusserand and in action he is a sight that would certainly startle the boulevardiers of "dear old Paris." He puts on a tough looking slouch hat, rolls up his right sleeve, and when not in the midst of the game himself jumps up and down, waves his arms wildly and goes through all manner of violent contortions. He's after the exercise, just like the President and he gets it. The President, who also plays a fierce game, is another ungraceful performer. He puts his whole heart and soul into it, and charges about the court like a bull in a china shop. When he drives a ball it generally makes a dent in the wire netting or, if it is stopped by a player opposite, the rebound sends it back to the President's fence. Garfield is Prisoners in Police Court This Morning—Drunks Predominated—A Boarding House Raided.

Eighteen prisoners faced Mayor Nathan in police court this morning. Most of the erring ones were drunks gathered up Saturday and Sunday, but one or two other cases changed the run slightly. None were of any great importance though.

Harry Smith, a disciple of Gans, Nelson, Britt and a few other ring men fell into the clutches of Officer Lytle about 6:45 Saturday night. He drew $5.00 and costs.

A foreign boarding house on Jackson street, was the scene of much noise and drinking Sunday afternoon and Officers Shively and McConnell raided the place. Most of the men present escaped, but Mac Moco, the Unconscious Sunday and Sunday Night, and Azlis, His Assailant is Re-arrested.

FRITZ

The condition of Franz Fritz, the Italian who was injured during a fight at the Everett factory last Thursday, is extremely critical, although the patient is resting easier today on his bed at the Sanitarium. Fritz, it will be remembered, was struck over the head during the fight in which he tried to act as peacemaker.

He sustained a slight fracture of the skull, and Sunday and Sunday night he was unconscious most of the time. Today, however, he is much brighter and is able to take a little nourishment. His assailant, Nunci Azlis, was released on $25 bond a couple of days after the fighting.

After Chief Zergiebel learned of the condition of the man he appeared before Mayor Nathan and filed a warrant charging Azlis with assault with intent to wound. He was re-arrested and locked up in the city prison awaiting developments.

NEWPORT SEASON OPENED BY BRILLIANT WEDDING

MRS. SAMUEL WAGSTAFF

Newport, R. I., May 11.—Miss Pauline Freuden, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Amos T. Freuden, and niece of Mrs. Alfred G. Vande Bilt, was married to Mr. Samuel Jones Wagstaff in St. John's church. The event had been looked forward to for a long time as opening the Newport season, and after days of cloud and rain the bright skies and soft May breezes delighted everybody, and such a merry party freedom as assembled for a wedding here. The church was crowded long before the hour for the ceremony. The interior of the church is so ornate that even flowers can add but little to it, but there was an artistic display of flowers of palms about the altar, flanked with bows of white, white satin ribbons within the chancel, and along the sides and in the windows foliage, plants and lilies. The next speaker was the Rev. L. A. Cosgrove, pastor of the Second Presbyterian church, who delivered a brief address on the topic, "How the Church and Laboring Men Can be Brought Closer Together." Some fine vocal music was furnished by a quartet and there was also some beautiful orchestra music.

KIRKERSVILLE BOY

Wins Signal Honors in Big Inter-Collegiate Athletic Contest at Boston.

(Special to the Advocate.) Boston, Mass., May 11.—Fred Moore, of Kirkersville, Licking county, Ohio, a junior in the Boston School of Technology, today won first honors for his school cup team in a shot putting contest with a picked team from the University of Maine, taking part in the intercollegiate athletic meet which is being held here.

Moore is the son of Mrs. Mary Moore, of Kirkersville, and is a graduate of the East Cleveland High school, where he repeatedly won honors on the football field, going under an assumed name, owing to parental objections to his participation in sporting events.

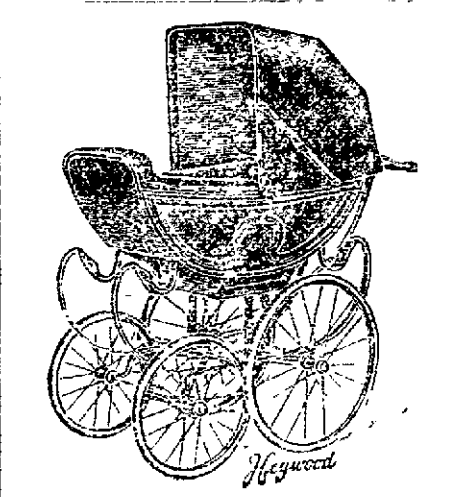

The family moved to Kirkersville from Cleveland two years ago, and spend their summers here on their farm.
